A BRIEF HISTORY

Established in 2011, Exsurco® Medical is a wholly owned subsidiary of Bettcher Industries, Inc., a leading producer of trimming and defatting tools and equipment used in meat and food processing. Exsurco leveraged Bettcher's proven technology to develop innovative technologies and devices for tissue processing and bone debridement.

By providing instruments engineered for precision, efficiency, and comfort, Exsurco makes life easier for technicians and clinicians. Backed by decades of expertise, Exsurco Medical delivers customer solutions that focus on increasing yields, improving productivity, and boosting bottom-line performance.

Exsurco's product lineup includes the Amalgatome® MD skin recovery device and the Amalgatome® SK skin debridement device. The unique rotary design of each device is easier to use, provides uniform, consistent grafts resulting in higher yields, and increased productivity compared to standard devices. Exsurco also produces DermaSharp® Replacement Blades with Edge-Retention Technology® for standard dermatomes.

In December 2014, BSI Group America, Inc. awarded ISO 13485:2003 registration to Exsurco. The Company opened a new 12,000 sq. ft. facility designed for medical manufacturing on July 1, 2011
